

The page contains text in a non-English language, making it difficult to accurately transcribe or interpret the content. The text appears to discuss a scientific or technical topic, possibly related to electromagnetic radiation or materials, given the context and formatting. However, without understanding the language, a precise translation is not possible.

Given the nature of the text, it likely involves detailed explanations, equations, or experimental results pertinent to the field it is discussing. The formatting suggests it might be formatted from a printout or a digital document, indicating it could be from a research paper, a technical report, or an academic publication.